

FOR TODAY'S CONTEST

Republicans Should Vote Entire Ticket Early.

FIGHT IN THE FIRST

Where the Ballots Will be Cast Today.

This is election day, and while only councilmen and members of the school board are to be elected, the action taken by the voters of Wichita today will be important. It is important that the mayor of the city has good men to help him in administering the affairs of the city. It is important that good men be elected to compose the membership of the school board, for the public schools are the heaviest single public interest in the city.

The Republican ticket is as follows and they are all good men:

First Ward—For councilman, W. N. Caswell; for school board, J. C. McCoy.

Second Ward—For councilman, Chas. Luning; for school board, R. C. Jackson.

Third Ward—For councilman, T. G. Van Dusen; for school board, Jas. Richey.

Fourth Ward—For councilman, C. L. Davidson; for school board, Chas. Sim.

Fifth Ward—For councilman, J. O. Davidson; for school board, R. R. Hatfield.

Sixth Ward—For councilman, Gus Miller; for school board, Jas. Rice.

There is no fight particularly except in the First ward. Nominations were made in the First ward party lines. Mr. Herbig, the present councilman, is nominated by the Democratic party. Mr. Caswell has been nominated by the Republican party. Admitting that both men are equal in point of capacity, the presumption is that each man would receive his party vote. The claim is made with a good deal of justice, however, that outside of any party considerations that Mr. Caswell will more nearly represent the interest of that ward. He is of long residence there. He is a laboring man, associated with and in sympathy with them. He represents no special or corporation interests as does Mr. Herbig. He has served two terms as a member of the council and was in great favor with the citizens of that ward. Mr. Herbig is necessarily bound up in many respects with his railroad company, and when the council voted to take up the question of coal rates he would not vote, thus leaving his ward unprotected. He also voted in opposition to the proposition to raise the wages of the laboring men from one and a quarter dollars per day to one and a half, and publicly stated in the council that this labor was worth no more than the railroad laborer, and that they only received a dollar and twenty cents per day.

Vote the Republican ticket clear through and vote early. Here are the voting places:

FIRST WARD.
First Precinct—City building.
Second Precinct—Opera house.
Third Precinct—Corner Lincoln and Lawrence.

SECOND WARD.
First Precinct—116 West Third street.
Second Precinct—335 North Main street.
Third Precinct—Kank's coal and feed store, corner Eleventh and Main streets.

THIRD WARD.
First Precinct—14 North Market street.
Second Precinct—Auditorium.
Third Precinct—134 East Douglas avenue.

FOURTH WARD.
First Precinct—21 East Murdoch avenue.
Second Precinct—Grafton's grocery store.
Third Precinct—Hose house No. 1.

FIFTH WARD.
First Precinct—300 West Douglas avenue.
Second Precinct—131 West Douglas avenue.

SIXTH WARD.
First Precinct—Corner Douglas and Washington avenues.
Second Precinct—120 East Douglas avenue.
Third Precinct—Grocery store.

FIRST WARD.
First Precinct—Judges, J. H. Brown, R. Scherff, J. O. Hawley; clerk, T. H. Pasham, Harry Davis.
Second Precinct—Judges, D. E. Fuller, W. H. Wendling, John Hays; clerk, L. I. Spencer, C. H. Humber.
Third Precinct—Judges, J. H. Alexander, T. G. Coffey, A. Christian; clerk, A. J. Jones, Geo. Gutzwiller.

SECOND WARD.
First Precinct—Judges, J. G. Williams, J. P. Lattin, J. Kessler; clerk, K. W. Hill, Chas. Davis.
Second Precinct—Judges, J. G. Blight, A. McArthur, H. Stewart; clerk, J. N. Hubert, F. M. Dean.
Third Precinct—Judges, D. M. Dickson, A. T. Buckner, Wm. Cawley; clerk, Jas. Alexander, E. L. Warner.

THIRD WARD.
First Precinct—Judges, W. S. Hawk, W. T. Burgess, W. B. Lower; clerk, J. H. McCall, Tom Sullivan.
Second Precinct—Judges, A. T. Heller, J. H. Moore, Jas. Fisher; clerk, W. S. Pines, G. W. Gwyn.
Third Precinct—Judges, J. C. Rutan, H. T. Dodson, L. R. Cady; clerk, A. C. Jackson, Chas. McArthur.

FOURTH WARD.
First Precinct—Judges, Wm. Buckner, Geo. Macdon, Mike Cook; clerk, Fred Lull, L. D. Barren.
Second Precinct—Judges, H. M. Grafton, Jas. L. Dyer, R. M. Platt; clerk, W. R. Kessler, Vermilion Harris.
Third Precinct—Judges, J. H. Butler, H. Seid, A. L. Miller; clerk, Frank Barlett, Fred Bailey.

FIFTH WARD.
First Precinct—Judges, W. S. Wilson, B. P. Draper, J. J. Arnold; clerk, H. H. Schreier, Harry Bidme.
Second Precinct—Judges, R. F. Hays, Geo. T. Wells, J. J. Ramsey; clerk, Jesse Island, C. K. Freeman.

SIXTH WARD.
First Precinct—Judges, B. Wilson, M. R. Clark, J. F. Davis; clerk, A. Belfel, O. E. Wilder, Jr.
Second Precinct—Judges, J. O'Han-

Dr. Bull's
Cures all Throat and Lung Affections.
COUGH SYRUP IS SURE
Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Trial, 25¢ for 5¢.

Hood's Pills

Are prepared from Nature's mild laxatives, and while gentle are reliable and efficient. They

Rouse the Liver

Cure Sick Headache, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, and Constipation. Sold everywhere, 25c. per box.
Prepared by C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Jan. C. W. Talburt, R. S. Bell; clerks, W. P. Cleveland, D. Crewson.

SCAFFOLD FELL

THOMAS WESTFALL AND M. J. WARD INJURED

Accident Occurred at Mr. Naftzger's Residence.

M. J. Ward and Thomas Westfall, carpenters, were badly injured yesterday by the fall of a scaffold at the residence of Mr. Naftzger, corner Lawrence avenue and Tenth street. The men were standing on one of the highest scaffolds when the accident happened. The scaffold was not well braced and fell suddenly, giving the men no time to protect themselves by catching to the ridges of the roof. Mr. Ward's right leg was broken and he was injured in the hip. At first it was thought his hip was broken, but it was found to be not so. Mr. Westfall sustained a compound fracture of the ankle, which renders it in a very bad condition, from which amputation may be necessary. He fell on a pile of stone and sustained an injury on the head. The men were removed to the Wichita hospital for treatment. Both have families.

SECOND MARRIAGE A FAILURE

Mrs. Lena Rogers Marries Same Man Twice and Asks a Divorce.

The second marriage of Mrs. Lena Rogers to her husband, Frank Rogers, seems to have been as much of a failure as the first. They lived together several years the first time, but were divorced, re-married January 20, last, and because Mr. Rogers assaulted her Saturday night and made her go down stairs, greatly to her discomfort and harm, she was again for divorce. In her petition Mrs. Rogers alleges that her husband is addicted to drink and often comes home drunk and in a bad and abusive state of mind. By their former marriage they have one daughter 7 years of age. Mrs. Rogers wants the custody of the daughter.

On the 13th day of last April Mrs. Rogers sued her husband for divorce. Stanley & Stanley were her attorneys; the cause of action Mrs. Rogers stated that she was married to Mr. Rogers in this city in 1886. Six months after the marriage he began drinking to excess and continued as an habitual drinker up to the time of the suit. On April 11, she alleged, he struck her with his fist, causing her great bodily pain. She alleged that he beat and abused her until she was sore of body and injured in one eye.

J. R. GROVES BANQUETTED
Official of the Frisco Known Here Retires With Honors.

A grand banquet and presentation was given in honor of James R. Groves, well known here as the retiring superintendent of motive power of the Frisco line, by the engineers and shop men of that system at the Metropolitan hotel, Springfield, Mo., on the evening of March 25.

One hundred and seventy guests were present, among them Mr. Geo. A. Harwick, superintendent of the Frisco; General Superintendent J. A. Davidson, Division Agent Spaulding, Assistant Claim Agents Edgar and Baker, Hon. J. S. Flory, Superintendent of Bridges and Building Bureau and others of prominence.

James Groves has served the Frisco company in the capacity of superintendent of motive power and machinery for the past twelve years, and in that time has endeavored himself to all who have come in contact with him, either in an official or a social way.

MR. HELM'S LAW PARTNER

Covington Welles of Boston Visits Old Friend Here.

Covington E. Welles, who came to Wichita with City Attorney Helm many years ago to practice law, was in the city yesterday on his way east. Mr. Welles is now a prominent attorney of Boston. He was married out of Wichita by the extreme holiday following the boom, but was very much surprised with the business activity and spirit he saw here yesterday. Mr. Welles and Mr. Helm were college mates and when they came west to launch out in their profession both were staunch young Republicans. Mr. Welles was greatly surprised and gratified yesterday when he found that his college mate and former partner had fallen from grace in the driving, flying and passing away of Populism is likely to be soon without a home. Mr. Helm stood the "joke" of his friend with complacency.

Mr. Welles has been over Colorado, New Mexico and several other western states on this trip and gave the west is prospering fully as much as the east. He says California and New Mexico are as prosperous as they could hope to have been if Bryan had been elected, and the business men in those states believe as are well satisfied. Instead of mining silver at a high price they have developed the other minerals, such as iron, copper, zinc, etc., and plenty of labor and capital and labor have been employed.

RUNAWAY IN RIVERSIDE

Mr. Caswell's Horse Passes Six Teams on a Bridge.

By reckless driving in the park Sunday three boys in a buggy drove against the buggy of Mr. W. N. Caswell, turning it over and throwing Mr. and Mrs. Caswell to the ground. Mrs. Caswell was injured quite seriously and is now in the hospital. The runaway horse ran away after they were thrown out and was not stopped until it had reached the bridge on Murdoch avenue. It made a very exciting and hazardous runaway, as many rigs were scattered along the way between the fountain in Griffiths park and Riverside park. The most dangerous incident was at the Griffiths park bridge. There were six buggies crossing the bridge when the runaway horse jumped onto the bridge, but the horse passed the buggies without touching one of them. The names of the boys who drove against Mr. Caswell's buggy could not be learned.

At St. John's church on Sunday afternoon seven children were baptized, and at the evening service thirteen were confirmed and one received from the Church of Rome by Bishop Mills.

ON NORTH MARKET

Street Car Line to Packing House Goes That Way.

RIGHT OF WAY SECURED

Tract of Land Leased by Co. to Clear the Route.

The street car people commenced work on the extension of the new Fairview line to the packing house yesterday morning. Contrary to all expectations, the Main street line was finished up Saturday night, or, rather, it was connected so that the cars could run through. The joints for the big rails ran short, but the management was not to be balked, so they got joints for the lighter rails and clamped them on tight enough to allow the cars to run through.

The new packing house line will be put in on Market street. A deal was closed Saturday afternoon by which the company was granted the right-of-way through on Market street. After the company had made all its plans it was discovered that the land from Water east to Emporia and between Ninth and Twelfth streets had never been incorporated in the city. This tract contains twenty-four acres and is owned by Mr. Samuel Hutchinson of North Lawrence avenue. Years ago when the streets were being surveyed he had them extended through his land and all the late maps of the city show it as platted and within city limits. At first Mr. Hutchinson wanted $50 for the right-of-way through his land, but the street car company did not want to pay this much, and made application to the county commissioners for a right-of-way on Lawrence avenue. Strong objections were made against this and the commissioners were undecided, when Mr. Hutchinson decided the matter for them. He has come to the conclusion that he would rather have the car line back of his house than in front of it and so sold the company to draw up the lease for the same term of years as their franchise and he would not take it. They signed the document and paid a dollar for the revenue stamp. Mr. Nelson was not to be outdone in generosity, and presented Mr. Hutchinson with $25, which that gentleman accepted. All the land through which the car line will pass does not belong to Mr. Hutchinson. Three other gentlemen are interested, but they agreed to follow Mr. Hutchinson's lead, as the question is entirely settled.

Besides the work on the Fairview line there was a gang of men at work yesterday putting the joints which arrived Sunday on the Main street line. There were sixty-seven pairs of these joints, and they were shipped by express. Yesterday Mr. Nelson showed a reporter for the Eagle the stub of a check for $1545 which he had made out to pay the express charges. Mr. Nelson remarked that joints came high but they must have them.

PROGRESSIVE MERCHANT

C. R. Fulton's Circular to "Mothers of Drowsy Boys."

C. R. Fulton, one of Wichita's foremost and enterprising clothiers, has just issued a very attractive circular addressed "To Mothers of Drowsy Boys." It is the most complete and artistic circular of home production that has been issued by a Wichita merchant. Mr. Fulton is a firm believer in printer's ink, and as a result of his extensive advertising his business is increasing each season, and as his business grows, he increases his advertising appropriation, continually reaching out for more trade. Last spring he issued a small four page circular on common news, this spring he increased this size to sixteen pages, printed on glazed book paper, the advertising illustrated, the title page being especially attractive. The circular is well gotten up, and is a good advertisement, and Mr. Fulton already has evidence of results produced. An Eagle reporter called at his large store Saturday and found the store crowded, the boys' and children's department being crowded with ladies and children, many of whom were no doubt attracted to the store by Fulton's advertisements in the daily papers, supplemented by the circular.

IS A HOT COMEDY

Walter Walker Plays "The Nominee" Will Repeat It.

An excellent performance is that which Walter Walker in a fine comedy presented at the Crawford theatre last night. The attendance was not large, but it is one of the best shows that has been here this season. Those who missed a theatrical treat last night will have an opportunity tonight to see the performance, as Mr. Walker's engagement in Wichita on this return engagement for two nights. Mr. Walker and his expert company appeared here in the "Nominee," Nat Goodwin's great play, early in the season. He had a small audience that night owing to a blizzard, but gave a fine performance. The company is now on their return trip from a very successful tour to the coast. Knowing this to be a high class attraction Mr. Walker presented Mr. Walker to book Wichita in his return trip and it was hoped that the company would be accorded a patronage in Wichita worthy of their talents.

RUNAWAY IN RIVERSIDE

Mr. Caswell's Horse Passes Six Teams on a Bridge.

By reckless driving in the park Sunday three boys in a buggy drove against the buggy of Mr. W. N. Caswell, turning it over and throwing Mr. and Mrs. Caswell to the ground. Mrs. Caswell was injured quite seriously and is now in the hospital. The runaway horse ran away after they were thrown out and was not stopped until it had reached the bridge on Murdoch avenue. It made a very exciting and hazardous runaway, as many rigs were scattered along the way between the fountain in Griffiths park and Riverside park. The most dangerous incident was at the Griffiths park bridge. There were six buggies crossing the bridge when the runaway horse jumped onto the bridge, but the horse passed the buggies without touching one of them. The names of the boys who drove against Mr. Caswell's buggy could not be learned.

AT Cash Henderson's

Easter on the Carpet

Every housekeeper knows that with Easter, Spring house-cleaning makes its advent. Are you prepared for a complete renovation of your home? You cannot be unless you have seen our new Spring line of Carpets and Matings. Everybody says they are exquisite. We have more than two car loads to select from. In Carpets we have no rivals.

119-121 N. MAIN STREET.

Money talks. It should talk with as much eloquence as a bootblack as for a banker, for a coal-hauler as for a capitalist; but in some stores in this fair city of ours (more shame to them since they claim to have "one price") if you are a workingman or "out of the pale" of the favored class it doesn't talk with enough eloquence to get its full worth of wearables. Here, at this good clothing store, a dollar in the hands of any man is as good and will buy as much—no more—as it will in the hands of any other man. That's what we mean by "same price to all," and this store doesn't bribe men holding high and responsible positions with gifts and fawning to act as "pullers in," "boosters" and "barkers" to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

Don't be over modest, ma'am, about having Boys' Clothing sent up for inspection—and comparison, if you please. We invite it, and are glad to have you do it, because we know that our Boys' Clothing will stand the severest test of comparison better yet, the test of actual service; and it costs no more, often less, than from other dealers.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because, forsooth, he traded where he could get the most for his money, or at least thought he could, and it doesn't sell an article at a certain advertised and stipulated price to you and to your neighbor at nominally the same price but with the tacit understanding that before he leaves the store he will find (?) a couple of dollars in his outside pocket. No, this store doesn't do that way. It sells its goods at the same price to all, with a positive guarantee that you can have your money back—not for any dissatisfaction—but simply for the asking.

to hound a man who exercises his rights as a free American citizen, because,